AN ACTE concernyng the Attaynder of Elizabeth Barton & others.

Recital of the Divorce between the King and Queen Katherine his first Wife, Widow of his Brother Prince Arthur; pretended Trances and Revelations of Elizabeth Barton, at the Instigation of certain Persons, for the Purpose of suggesting that such Divorce was displeasing to Heaven; and of rendering the King odious, and putting his Life and Crown in Danger;

THE LORDES and Cōmons in this present parliament assembled moost [humble besechyng[1]] the Kyngꝭ Highnes that for the declaracion of hys most pure and syncere conscience in the devorce and sepacon laufully had and don bytwene hys Majestie and the right excellent Princes the Lady Katheryne, and for due punyshment to be had of suche ꝑsones as maliciously malygnyng ayenst the same have traterously attempted many notable actꝭ intendyng therbye the disturbaunce of the pease and tranquyllytie of this Realme; and for repression exāple and reformacion of the malices and malignities whiche hereafter may be falsely conspired and compased by suche evell doers to make dyvysion within this Realme, that it may be enacted in maner and forme folowyng that is to sey; Where our seyd Soveraigne Lorde, lyke a good and vertuous prynce, being afflicted and sore incombred in hys conscience withe the mariage whiche was solempnysed bytwene hys Majestie and the seid right excellent Prynces the Lady Katheryne late wyf of the right excellent Prynce Arture naturall brother to our seid Soveraigne Lorde, to the which prynce Arthure the seid Lady Katharen was lawfully maryed and by hym carnally knowen, for the only descharge of his conscience ayenst Almyghtye God, by all true wayes and meanes inserched studyed devysed and consulted, aswell with sondrye Universities of Cristendome as with a great nomber of excellent Clerkes lerned in dyvynytie, of the valydytie and invalidite of the seid maryage solempnysed bytwene hys Highnes and seid Ladye Katheryne, being before the seid maryage hys seid brothers wyff and by hym carnally knowyn, and after the determynate and playne jugementꝭ of the seid sondry Universities and well lerned men, by reason of inserches in the holy scriptures of God, by a greate advyse and delibacion it was declared and signyfyed unto our seid Soveraigne Lorde that the seid maryage solempnyzed betwene hys Highnes and the seid Lady Katheryn was ꝓhybyted and detested by the lawes of Almyghty God, our seyd Sovᵉeign Lord theruppon pursued for a just and lawfull sepacyon and devorce to be had betwene his Highnes and the said Lady Katheryn from the bondes of the seid unlawfull and detested maryage, as to a good Catholyke Prynce besemed to doo in that behalf, to the intent that hys Majestie under the [boundes[2]] of a lawfull mariage consonant and agreable unto the lawes of Almyghtie God myght have issue and ꝓcreacion for the welthe pease reste tranquillytie and suretie of this hys Realme and subjectes of the same; which devorce and sepacion is now lawfully had, and our seid Soveraign Lorde justly and lawfully maryed to hys most dere and entyerly beloved wyf Quene Anne, and by her hath had issue and is lyke (God being pleased) to have moo to the greate comforte rejoyce and suertie of all hys subjectes of this Realme: And albeit that our seid Soveraigne Lorde, lyke a good catholyke kynge, for the only discharge of hys conscience and for the welthe and suertie of this hys Realme, most prudently most delibatly most gentylly most mekely and most charytably ꝓceded in the inserchyng and knowing of the valyditie and invalyditie of the seid detested and unlawfull mariage, and therin paynfully travayled by many yeres, not only to the great inquyetnes and troble of hys mynde but also to hys inestymable costes and expences: yet never the lesse dyverse and sondry wylfull and inobedient subjectes of this Realme, whos names and offenses shall appere and be declared hereafter, being maliciously fixed in a contrary opynyon ayenst the pure jugement of the kyngꝭ owne conscience, and also the Determynacions of the seid sondry Universities and well lerned men, well ꝓceyving that they being but a fewe in nomber coude not, by theire seid wylfull and ꝑverse opynyons grounded of malice corrupcion and affeccion, hynder ne interupte the seid devorce and sepacion by any lawfull meanes, dyd therfore, by false feyned hipocrise [dissymulate[3]] sanctitie and cloked holynes, not only sett fourth and put in the heddes of a greate nombre of the subjectes of this Realme aswell nobles as other Spirytuall and temporall ꝑsones, that they had knowlege by revelacion from Almyghty God and holy Sayntes that God shuld be [displeased[4]] with our seid Soveraigne Lorde, for hys seid ꝓcedynges in the seid devorce and sepacion of the seid detestate and unlawfull maryage, but also surmysed emonges other thynges that God had reveled to an holy woman, whos name here after shalbe mencioned in this acte, that in case hys Highnes ꝓceded to thaccomplishment of the seid devorce and maried another, that then hys Majestie shulde not be kynge of this Realme by the space of one moneth after, And in the reputacion of God shuld not be kynge one day nor one houre; with many other fals feyned and dissymulate fables tales and lyes by them unlawfully and traiterously practysed devysed ymagyned and conspired, aswell to the blasphemy of Almyghty God as ayenst our seid Soveraigne Lorde, as by the ꝑticulers therof here after more at large in this present acte shalbe expressed: That is to sey, fyrst one Elizabeth [Barton[5]] nowe being Nonne ꝓfessed in the House and Priory of Seynt Sepulcres of Canturbury, whiche longe afore she was ꝓfessed Nonne dwellyd with one Thomas Cobbe in the ꝑisshe of Aldyngton in the Countie of Kent, hapned to be visited with sicknes and by occasion therof brought in suche debilitie and wekenes of her brayne, by cause she coulde not eate ne drynke by a longe space, that in the violence of her infirmitie she semed to be in traunses and spake and uttered many folysshe and idell wordes; And one Richard Maister clerke being pson of the seid psshe of Aldyngton in the seid Countie of Kent, after that he had made to the late Archibisshop of Cantbury a farr larger report conc̃nyng the hipocrisie traunces and speches of the seid Elizabeth than he colde justifie and abyde by, And after that he was cōmaundyd by the seid Archibisshop to geve good attendaunce upon her yf she shulde fortune to have any moo suche traunces and speches and to send hym knowlege therof, to the intent to maynteyne upholde and veryfie suche reporte as he had made, aswell to the Archebisshopp aforsed as to other, of the wonderfull traunses and speches of the seid Nonne, falsely and [craftly [1]] enformed the seid Elizabeth that the mervelous wordes which she spake in her traunses afore hys rydyng to tharchebysshop aforseid pceded of the inspiracion of the Holy Ghost, and that she was greatly to be blamed yf she wolde hyde or dissemble the wonderfull workꝭ of God shewed in her, for afore this hys seid informacion and instruccion she seid constantly that she colde not remember that she spake any such notable wordes in her traunses as were reported unto her by the seid Richard Maister; which Elizabeth being in this maner of wyse often tymes psuaded pcured and informed by the seid pson of Aldyngton, toke boldnes and corage to forge feyn and counterfeyte suche maner of traunces and craftie speches as the seid pson of Aldyngton tolde her that she used in her sekenes afore he went to the seid Archebisshop; And when the seid Elizabeth had used this maner of falce and feyned counꝰfetying for a season and was pfyte therin (so that the fame therof was greatly sprede abrode in thosee parties of Kent) then the seid pson, to thentent aforseid and to the entent the people shulde geve more faith and credence unto her, and by cause he wolde have incressed the devocion of the people in cōmyng on pilgremage to a chapell sett in Courte at Strete aforsaid within hys seid pisshe dedicate in the honore of oure Lady for hys own lucre and advauntage, ymagyned devysed compassed and declared, with the [seid [2]] helpe and counsell of one Edwarde Bockyng monke professed in the monastrie in Christis Churche in Canterbury and doctor in Dyvynyte, that the seid Elizabeth being in the extasy and extremytie of her seckenes in a maner destracte in a traunce shuld sey amonge other wonderfull wordꝭ, that she shuld never take helthe of her body tyll suche tyme as she had visyted the ymage of our Lady being in the seid Chapell at Courte at Strete aforseid, And that our Lady hade appered unto her and shewed her that yf she cam to the seid Chappell at the daye to her appoynted, she shulde be restored to her helthe by myracle, where in very dede she was restored to her pfyte helthe by dyete and phisyke and by the Course of nature whiche expelled the mater being cause of her seckenes, in the meane tyme whyles the seid person of Aldyngton was with the seid Archibisshop as is afore rehersed: And albeit the seid Elizabeth was thus naturally restored to her helthe, yet she being accustomed and acquaynted with the maner and facion of her distract traunses, by the counsayle conspiracy and confideracie of the seid Edwarde Bockyng and Richarde Maister, dyd falsely practyse use and shewe unto the people dyverse and mervaylous sodeyne alteracions of her sensible parties of her bodie, craftely utteryng in her seid feyned and falce traunses dyverse and many vertuous and holy wordes tendyng to the rebuke of synne, and in reprovyng of suche newe opynyons as then began to sprynge in this Realme whiche she called heresies, as she was induced and taught by the seid Edwarde Bockyng and Richard Maister, usyng all the wayes of falce hipocrisie to thentent the people shulde geve beleve and credence unto her, wherby they myght be the sooner broughte into the detestable crymes of blasphemye and idolatrie ayenst Almyghty God; and the seid Edwarde Bockyng being maliciously fyxed in hys opynyon ayenste the Kynges Highnes in the seid detested matrymonye, and intendyng in hys mynde afterwardꝭ for hys parte falselye and traytrouslye to use the seid Elizabeth as a dyabolyke instrument to [stere [3]] move and pvoke the people of this Realme aswell nobles as other to mourmour and grugge ayenst the majestie of our seyd Soveraygne Lorde and all hys juste and lawfull pcedyngꝭ in the seid devorse and sepacion, as after he dyd in verye dede, for thaccomplysshyng of hys seid false malicious and traytrous intentis falsely devysed and conspired with the seid Richard that the seid Elizabeth shulde shewe and manyfeste her self to the people to be an excellent vertuous and an holy woman, and that all her wordꝭ and dedꝭ shulde appere to the worlde to procede of a mervaylous holynes rebukyng the cōmen synnes and vyses of the worlde, as though she were toughte and inspyred of the holy [sprete [4]] of God, and not only moved and counseyled the seid Elizabeth thus to use her self; surmyttyng to her that she spake suche thynges in the extasie of her sekenes that came by the inspyracion of God, but also counseyled and pcured the seid Elizabeth to be brought and conveyd to the seid Chapell of our Lady, and she therin openly in the p̃sence of the people (that there shulde be assembled by theire pcurementꝭ) shulde use and experyment suche lyke traunses and alteracions of hir face and other the outwarde sensible partis of her body as she used in thextremytie and extacye of her seid sekenes, To whos counsailles and advertisementes the seid Elyzabeth agreed; [Wherapon [5]] at a day by theym appoyntyd and agreed the seid Edwarde and Richarde labored solicited and pcured above the nomber of ij thousande psones to repayre to the seid Chapell, surmyttyng that the seid Elizabeth, which as they seid had mervaylous and many vysyons and revelacions of God, shuld be brought thether and theyre receyve her helthe by myracle of our Lady whose ymage was in the seid Chapell; by reason of wyche falce feyned and detestable conspiracye and ypocracy at the day by theym appoyntyd there assembled to the seid Chapell above the nomber of ij thousande people; at which day also the seid Edwarde Bockyng and Richard Maister pcured and caused the seid Elizabeth to repare to the seid Chappell, where the seid Elizabeth, albeit she at that tyme and longe afore was restored to helth of her body and discharged of her tormentꝭ and afflyccions whiche she hadd in the extasie of her secknes, yet nevertheles by the pcurement and crafty counsell of the seid Edwarde Bockyng and Richard Maister dyd falsely feyne and shewe unto the people in the same chapell many alteracions of her face and other outwarde sensible partes of her body, and falsely feyned and shewed her self in traunses utteryng wondrous wordes as she was afore subtelly and craftly induced and taught by the seid Richard and Edwarde to do: And amonges other thynges she uttered that it was the pleasure of God that the seid Edwarde Bockyng shuld be hir gostly father, and that she shulde be a religious woman, as she was taught by the seid Edwarde Bockyng and Ric̃ Maister; and within a whyle after demonstracion of suche falce feyned and dissimuled traunses she appered to the people to be sodenly releved from her sekenes and [affleccions[1]] by the intercession and meanes of the ymage of our Lady being in the same Chapell; by meanes of which falce feyned hypocrysie dissymuled and cloked sanctitie, so conspired and craftly ymagyned by the seid Edwarde Bockyng and Richarde Maister, the seid Elizabeth was brought into a mervelous fame credit and good opynyon of a great multitude of the people of this Realme: And to increce the fame of the seid falce feyned hypocricy the seid Elizabeth afterwardꝑ by the counsell and ꝓcurement of the seid Edwarde Bockyng entred into the relygyon and be came a Nonne ꝓfessed in the seid priory of Seynt Sepulcurs, to whome the seid Edwarde Bockyng had cōmenly hys resorte, not without ꝓbable vehement and vyolent suspicion of incontinencye, pretendyng to be hir gostly father by Godys appoyntment; & by conspiracye bytwene her and hym caused her styll to ꝑsist and abyde in the practysyng of her seid falce ypocrycie and [dissymylyng[2]] traunses and raptes; And that she shulde surmytt to the people that when she was in suche simuled alteracion of her sensible parties of her body, that she was then rapt by Almyghty God frome thaffeccions of this worlde and tolde by the holy spyryt of God many thynges that shulde folowe to the worlde for punyshment of the synnes of the prynces and the people; And that she shulde also sey that she was moche ꝓvoked and tempted aswell to the synne of the flesshe as otherwyse by her gostly enemye the Devell, at dyverse and sondre tymes and in dyverse and sondre ways and facions, And yet nevertheles that she by the grace of God was preserved and stedfastly resisted suche temptacions; by occasion of which counsayle and ꝓcurement of the seid Edwarde Bockyng the seid Elizabeth by contynuance of tyme toke suche a courage upon her, that she falsely feyned and seyd that she had many revelacōns of Almyghty God and hys holy Sayntes with hevenly lyghtes hevenly voises hevenly melodyes and joyes, and specialy in a chapell of Seynt Gyles in the seid Nuñrie, to the whiche chapell she oftentymes resorted to receyve vysions and revelacions as cōmaunded by God as she falsely reported, and speciall by night saing that the dorture dore was made open unto hir (3) Godes power, utteryng the same aswell to the seid Edward Bockyng as to dyverse other ꝓsones; by the which her falce feyned revelacions and cloked hipocrisy she was reputed amongest many people of this Realme to be a very holy woman inspired with God, where in very dede she never had vysion or revelacion from God as she hath playnly and openly confessed her self, and therefore her stealing fourth of the dorture in the nyght (which was ones or twyse wekely) was not for spirituall busynes nor to receyve revelacions of God, but rather for bodyly cōicacion and pleasure with her fryndes, which coude not have so good leisure and oportunytie with her by day;
